Ramadan 2020
Academic Accommodations by School
Emory University

Last Week of Classes:

Candler School of Theology: If you have concerns about any assignments that are due during the final days of class that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor immediately.

Emory College: If you have concerns about any assignments that are due during the final days of class that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor well in advance (at least two weeks) of any deadlines.

Emory School of Medicine: If you have concerns about any assignments that are due during the final days of class that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor immediately.

Goizueta Business School: If you have concerns about any assignments that are due during the final days of class that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor immediately.

Laney Graduate School: If you have concerns about any assignments that are due during the final days of class that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor immediately.

Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing: If you wish to discuss accommodations, please contact ryan.m.lounsbery@emory.edu so we can adjust your exam schedule.

Rollins School of Public Health: If you have an afternoon exam during the last week of class please contact your faculty to arrange for an alternative time earlier in the day.

Exams:

Candler School of Theology: If you have concerns about exams scheduled that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor immediately.

Emory College: Due to the Spring 2020 Remote Learning situation, many faculty will be using alternative assignments in lieu of final exams. A limited number of classes will use an online proctoring service that may provide some flexibility with scheduling. Students are encouraged to work directly with their faculty for adjustments or concerns that need consideration.

Emory School of Law: Scheduled exams, with very few exceptions, will be administered in a 24-hour, take-home, self-scheduled format via Electronic Blue Book (EBB). This means that you can choose any 24-hours within the scheduled exam period in which to take each of your exams. Once you download an exam via EBB, you will have 24 hours to complete it and upload your answer. Unless you hear directly from any of your professors that they will be giving a timed exam instead of a 24-hour take-home exam, you should assume all of your exams will be given in this format. If you have any questions or concerns about exam accommodations, please contact Cody Teague (cody.teague@emory.edu) for information and support.

Emory School of Medicine: If you have concerns about timing of exams that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor immediately.

Goizueta Business School: If you have concerns about timing of finals that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor immediately.

Laney Graduate School: If you have concerns about timing of finals that fall during Ramadan, please contact your professor immediately.

Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing: If you wish to discuss accommodations, please contact ryan.m.lounsbery@emory.edu so we can adjust your exam schedule.

Rollins School of Public Health: If you have an afternoon exam during the exam period please contact your faculty to arrange for an alternative time earlier in the day.